name by the month in which he was born. Three or four days after birth, not over five months. They set a day on which relatives and friends bring things, grub, give it to baby—glad there are new folks, kin to us, who have come to live with us. Then every birthday give big feast. 85/ 553 [858]

E. R. and W. L. said names might be given immediately after birth or not until several days had passed.

90. Particular age of naming child

LINDESTRÖM says when they become large enough to shoot a gun.

91. Descriptive names

J. W.—Names in keeping with month of birth. 553

W. L.—Animal names are used but not exclusively.

93. Names from dreams

E. R.—All names come from dreams. Child might go several days without a name. Chaff each other in the family about not being able to give a newborn child a name. Finally one of the parents or grandparents, going to bed with this on his mind so much, would awake with a dream of a name. 553 787

JOHN JOHNSTON—It is generally from dreams dreamt by the parent or some relation, relative to the agility or faculty of some animal, which they say appears to them and tells a pretty story.

97 and 98. Individual has more than one name; changed later in life

JOHN JOHNSTON—They have [more than one name] sometimes but the second one is one of their own choosing when they arise to years of discretion. 553

CAPTAIN PIPE—Although they never have more than one name at a time it is not uncommon for them when grown up, to change their name, in which case the same ceremonies at the grand council take place. This subsequent naming (it sometimes goes as far as a third) is sometime because the original appellation,
